NATIVE PLANT WORKSHOP AT SIERRA MADRE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Sierra Madre, CA. – September 23, 2016 –Native plants beautify, nurture wildlife, save water, thrive in our climate, and are low maintenance. Find out how all this can be yours, at "Water-Wise Gardening with Native Plants," on Saturday, October 15, 10:00 am at the Sierra Madre Public Library.

Kelley Hanna, founder of Plant Goddess Landscaping in Sierra Madre, will show you how to create beautiful, water efficient landscaping appropriate to our area. Hanna's work features a variety of water-wise California native plants.

Susan Hoskins will show "Butterflies and Birds Need Native Plants", a short film hosted by Lisa Novick, produced by LIFE , Landscape Integrity Films and Education, of Sierra Madre. Susan worked for the SGVMWD as a community liaison on the Sierra Madre School Native Plant and Water Conservation Project.

San Gabriel Valley Municipal Water District staff will review area water conservation accomplishments and goals, and source sustainability.
